Assessment Funnel & Conditional Emails

A coaching funnel moved from Ivorey to GoHighLevel. One landing page, an assessment, a results page, and an email that changes with the answers. Client, brand, and personal details are withheld.

What is in place

- The build was moved from Ivorey onto GoHighLevel.
- A single-page landing page, with the assessment as the next step.
- The quiz itself, hosted in GoHighLevel.
- A results page that follows the quiz, using the platform's own results feature.
- A workflow that assembles the follow-up email from conditional blocks.

How the email decides

Calculated fields store a score for each theme, plus an overall total. Each block has a rule. If the rule matches, that section is included. If it does not, the section stays hidden.

- Overall score picks one of three openings: a heavier season, a mixed picture, or a strong result.
- A low score on a single question, or a low combined score, turns on the matching block.
- A readiness answer picks a low, mid, or high close, with a different next step in each.
- A second condition inside each block picks one of three audience versions of the same idea.

Where it stands

The page, quiz, results page, and workflow logic are built. The remaining work is finishing the email blocks and testing that each path sends the right sections. After that test, the project is handed over.

Not included

No client name, no personal details, no screenshots of the live page, and no email copy. Those stay with the hiring partner.
